Aero Announces Leadership Change

Indianapolis based Aero Industries, Inc., announced today that Jamie Scarcelli has been named President and CEO. Scarcelli's experience includes 18 years at Wabash National Corporation, where he first led the Wabash Composites business unit as Vice President and General Manager and later as Vice President of Corporate Growth. As Scarcelli leads Aero into the next phase of growth, Jim Tuerk, owner and current CEO, will transition to Executive Chairman after 45 years in the business.

Aero Industries, Inc., is one of the nation's leading providers of innovative tarp systems and accessories for the transportation industry. Family owned and operated for over 75 years, their American made products include a wide range of solutions for dump and flatbed trailers. Headquartered in Indianapolis, Indiana, with additional offices in Omaha and Valley, Nebraska and Kent, Ohio, they serve customers and dealers throughout North America.
